

MAGGIE MILLAR
IN STAINLESS

by Jane Hyde

a rehearsed reading

Stainless: A Cry from the Heart

Multi award winning actor Maggie Millar is coming out of semi-retirement, where she has concentrated on her painting and occasional readings, to appear in a play specially written for her by her friend author Jane Hyde.

The inspiration for the work comes from Millar's own extraordinary life.

The play entitled STAINLESS is a heart rending story of the ongoing repercussions of the premature and permanent separation of mother and child in the adoption process.....

There will be a reading of Stainless on Saturday 23rd July at La Mama's Courthouse Theatre in Carlton at 2pm. Theatre lovers, those affected by the adoption process, and those working as therapists among the adoption community should not miss this rare opportunity to see an award winning actor performing in a stunning and insightful piece of theatre.

La Mama at the Courthouse Theatre

349 Drummond Street, Carlton

Saturday 23rd July 2pm Tickets $10

Bookings: <https://www.trybooking.com/213465>

"I wanted a beautiful ending. That was my yearning. Is there ever a sadder word? Yearning."